Dear Secretary Purisima,

Delivering aid transparency at the High Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness, Busan, 29 Nov – 1 Dec 2011

We, the undersigned agencies, networks and organisations, are writing to ask for your support in ensuring that donors reaffirm and deepen their commitments on aid transparency at the Fourth High Level Forum (HLF-4) on Aid Effectiveness in Busan. In this letter we set out why aid transparency is needed now; what we believe is achievable at Busan and in the Working Party on Aid Effectiveness process; and what we would like you to do before Busan.

The recent Evaluation of the Paris Declaration and the Monitoring Survey emphasize that transparency is the indispensable foundation for aid effectiveness and mutual accountability. Although donors and partner countries acknowledged this in 2008 by making several aid transparency commitments under the Accra Agenda for Action (AAA), the pace and extent of change, particularly regarding transparency for development results, has been “mostly slow to moderate”.<sup>1</sup> Public support for the “Make Aid Transparent” Campaign – already supported by 97 organisations and with thousands of signatures from 125 countries – shows how people around the world want their governments to deliver on these commitments.

As you know, off-budget aid flows have long been a challenge for partner countries in planning, budgeting and managing more effectively for domestic development expenditures. The International Aid Transparency Initiative (IATI) is the only vehicle for donors to deliver on their AAA commitments on aid transparency, conditionality and predictability. Partner countries have also recognised the need for ensuring compatibility of the common standard with their own budget systems, as reflected in the CABRI<sup>2</sup> Position on Aid Transparency. This compatibility would allow the alignment of aid information with country budgets, enabling partner governments to plan their resource allocation most effectively and supporting accountability processes at the country level.

We believe that aid transparency is an area in which donors and partner countries will be able to demonstrate real progress at Busan, with implementation of IATI being crucial to that success. With less than 2 months to go before Busan, aid transparency must be recognised as a core theme and IATI as the primary vehicle for delivering this, embedded as a set of concrete, time-bound and measurable commitments in the final Outcome Document. In practice, this requires the following:

- All donors to publish comprehensive, timely, forward-looking data on all aid flows in a common, public and comparable format in accordance with the IATI standard by December 2015;
- All donors to publish implementation schedules by December 2012 in order to meet these commitments;

<sup>2</sup> The Collaborative Africa Budget Reform Initiative (CABRI) is a network of senior budget officials in 22 African Ministries of Finance or Planning.

- Published information to use common definitions and formats that are compatible with partner countries' budgets and systems.

Your support in actively promoting aid transparency internationally will be vital before and during the Busan negotiations. We urge the Government of the Philippines to:

- endorse IATI;
- call for more donors to sign up to IATI before HLF-4;
- request that donors release their implementation plans for the publication of aid information to the IATI standard.

IATI's feasibility for delivering aid transparency is now undeniable – donors accounting for 33% of reported ODA have so far declared their intention to publish to the standard by Busan. We look forward to working with you to ensure that this figure continues to grow and that HLF-4 truly delivers on aid transparency for citizens in both the Philippines and in donor countries.

Yours sincerely
