

October Newsletter

The global campaign for aid transparency

A Message from Karin

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

The momentum continues to build around Aid Transparency and around the Publish What You Fund office. We now have five new members in our team and we're recruiting for one more; please refer to the vacancies section for more information on this.

Get to know the new Publish What You Fund members!

Upcoming Events:

North American CSO

Consultation –

Washington, D.C.,

14/09/09

IATI Hague Conference

– The Hague, 20/10/09-

21 /10/09

UK Party Conferences-

Guest Speaker: Karin

Christiansen

Liberal Democrats –

22/09/09- 6- 7.30pm

Connect 2, Premier Inn,

Bournemouth

Labour – 29/09/09- 1-

2pm, Brighton

Sarah Hewison, has a background in head-hunting, selection and assessment. Now that our recruiting is nearly complete she is moving on to other projects.

Cormac Nolan, is busy developing a transparency index and contributing to a number of research papers.

Simon Parry, has joined us as head of operations. Simon has an extensive background in humanitarian operations and IT.

Federico Pirzio-Biroli, is working alongside Marcus Roberts in communications. He is tracking media developments and updating our social media outlets.

Catalina Reyes, is working on the U.S. aid transparency briefing paper and tracking important legislation both in the House and in the Senate.

Feature: Building momentum and keeping busy

We are preparing for the International Aid Transparency Initiative taking place in the Hague on October 18-22, the Oxfam workshop on aid transparency in Washington D.C., the UN Development Corporation Forum, and the Aidwatch seminar in Brussels, last three in November. The aim is to complete three to four separate briefing papers to be distributed at these events.

Latest News

October 13, 2009

World Bank proposes a radical restructuring of its policies on the disclosure of information

October 7, 2009

"Where Does My Money Go?" to launch new prototype this Autumn

To unsubscribe from our mailing list click here. To update your details or join our mailing list click here.

Publish What You Fund only records the data required to communicate with you effectively and will not disclose any information to third parties