ANALYSIS

UAE-MOFAIC remains in the 'Very Poor' category and has dropped over 16 points since the 2020 Index. It sits in last place in this year's Index. UAE-MOFAIC comes in the bottom five organisations across all components of the Index.

UAE-MOFAIC made no data consistently available in any format for finance and budgets, performance, or project attributes. For organisational planning and commitments, UAE-MOFAIC only scored points for accessibility due to having an aid data portal. Only tenders were published for the joining-up development data component.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- The UAE-MOFAIC should start publishing timely, comprehensive, and forward-looking information on its foreign assistance in a comparable and open format by adding an IATI organisational file and data about all of its activities.

Organisational planning and commitments

ABOUT COMPONENT

This component looks at the overall aims and strategy of an organisation. We check for any public commitments to aid transparency. We also make sure audits are published and if planning documents have been published, including by parent organisations (including national governments) where applicable. We make note of any Freedom of Information laws and critically, we make sure that organisations have tried to make their information easy to access and understand. You should not have to be an expert in open data to be able to find and use this information.

ABOUT COMPONENT

This component is critical to allow you and anyone else to follow the money. We expect to find the total budget of the organisation being assessed, right down to individual transactions for each development activity. In particular, forward-looking budgets from donors are important for partner country governments to be able to plan their own future finances.

ABOUT COMPONENT

This component refers to descriptive, non-financial data, including basics like the title and description of a project. Information like this is important as it is often the entry point for data users to quickly understand what a project is about. We also look for other information that helps to put a project in context, such as its sub-national location or the sector that the project deals with, for example, education or agriculture.

ABOUT COMPONENT

This component looks at how well an organisation's data is able to be linked and connected with other bits of information. There is a diverse nature of flows, activities and actors within the development sector. Aid and development finance data needs to be effectively linked and connected with the rest to provide a full picture for the user. This can be particularly important for partner country governments, which need to integrate information on aid with their own budgets and systems.

ABOUT COMPONENT

This component refers to the essential data and documents that assess whether a project is on track or has been achieved. This includes things like baseline surveys, progress against targets, mid-term reviews and end of project evaluations. This information is important to hold aid organisations to account and also to share knowledge with others on what worked and what did not during a project.
